Choice Poetry.

UNDER THE SNOW.

The following beautiful poem we cut from one of our eastern exchanges. The reply, in brackets, has been written by Col. Freeze.

Sweet little loving thing, low, low, low,
Down in the cold, cold grave she lies,
Deep 'neath the daisy knoll, under the snow,
Silenced forever her carols and cries.

[Silenced forever her carols? no! no!
Singing with angels beyond the blue skies;
Waiting for you who remain here below,
Waiting, still waiting to see you arise.]

Sweet little dimpled chin, how she would dance!
Dear little laughing eyes, how she would smile!
Still are her tiny feet now, and her glance
Beams not on me for a weary long while.

[No—but it beams on a heavenly scene,
Watches and looks for your coming once more;
At last when you come, oh then will be seen
Her tiny feet skip o'er a diamond floor.]

"Dead!" do my neighbors say? Death is a dream
In the mid-Maytime she went out to play;
Daily I see her by meadow and stream,
Couched 'mid the golden cups, sunny as they.

[Now from her crown of gold flashes a beam
Now from her harp of gold issues a strain,
Would you replace her by meadow and stream
Couch her mid butter cups, sunny, again?]

Weep my eyes scalding tears, weep, weep, weep,
Bleed my soul, throb my heart, heavy with pain,
Longing still for her awake or asleep,
When shall I gaze on my beauty again?

[When your eyes open to Heavenly things,
When your heart pulses no longer with pain,
When with the blessed your thanksgiving rings,
Then will you gaze on your beauty again.]

Sweet little loving thing low, low, low,
Down in the cold, cold grave she lies,
Deep 'neath the daisy knoll under the snow,
Silenced forever her carols and cries.

[Silenced forever her carols? no, no,
Singing with angels beyond the blue skies,
Waiting for you who remain hear below,
Waiting and hoping to see you arise.

Miscellaneous.

THE HOTEL CLERK.

THE lively amusement correspondent of the Chicago Tribune gets off the following, which will be appreciated by all who are in the habit of patronizing the hotels of that or any other city:

I approach you in a timid frame of mind to-day, with a few hesitating words on the subject of hotel clerks.

And I appeal to you, O, omniscience, is there a greater person on earth than the hotel clerk?

I have come to the conclusion that there is not.

Earthly potentates, philosophers, warriors and poets dwarf in comparison.

My eyes are open to the enormity of my ignorance and I freely own that I did wrong in asking that young man with the nice hair and stunning vest, if he would give me a room on the second floor. I do not blame him that he looked at me through his eye-glasses, with a tooth-pick in his mouth, for ten minutes; that he then said he would be back in a minute and went off to play billiards; that he was gone half an hour and came back and read half a dozen notes from widows in the house; that he then looked up and asked me what I wanted; and then he sent me to the fifth story. All this I ought to have expected.

But the look he gave me was cruel. The glance which commenced at the top of my hat and went to the toe of my boot, was too much. Was it not enough to evince his superiority by ordering me to the fifth story? Why expose me to that chilling look? I know that I should have begged that nice young man's pardon for speaking to him, but one cannot always remember hotel etiquette.

And I went up to my den in the fifth story thoroughly convinced that I had no rights a hotel clerk was bound to respect, and I did not ca e to look at him after that, and I paid my bill through the proxy of a man and a brother who knew the hotel clerk better than I did.

Next to being Khan of Tartary, or Tycoon of Japan, I would be a hotel clerk. He is a subject of interest only second to Barnum's gorilla—a being so far elevated above the petty strifes and cares of the world that he can look down from his altitude upon us all and smilingly consign us to the devil if it so please him—a compound of arrogance, self-complacency, don't-care-a-cussativeness, and utter disregard of ordinary human beings, so strongly compounded that it becomes sublime.

And I always revere sublimity of this description. When he sent me to the fifth story with a carpet bag in each hand, I did not complain. I kissed the hand that smote.

All that he does is done with an air of superiority. Do you desire to ascertain what time the train departs? He refers you to the office of the company, and don't know where it is. Do you want to know where Bangs & Co. do business? He waves you to the directory of some other city and replaces his whole mind on his tooth-pick. Ask him for some tickets to an evening's performance at the theatre, and he will crush you with a glance, as much as to say, do I look like a man in a box-office?

He is master of all he surveys, absolute in his way, wonderful in his make up, express and admiral in his functions. He knows everybody, and has a front seat at the opera. When he puts his whole mind on a carpet bag he can tell at a glance whether it contains a shirt and a tooth-brush or a first-class trousseau, and he can grade men into their rooms by their coat buttons with the utmost ease.

Ordinary impudence usually gets snubbed, but there does not live a man with courage enough to snub the hotel clerk. His impudence is allied to genius. It has taken him years to reach it, and the painful hours of study he has given to the characteristics of the tooth-pick are something wonderful to think of.

When I retire from the pomps and vanities of this world, O, Tribune, and have no further interest in sublunary matters, I hope to be a hotel clerk. I can conceive of no epitaph more impressive than the touching words—"He was a hotel clerk."

A YOUNG man and a young woman got married for fun the other day in Detroit and are now vainly seeking to be divorced in earnest.

THE BIG SNAKE OF CANAAN, CONNECTICUT.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Poughkeepsie Daily Eagle denies the report recently published in the Amenia Times, that the big snake which has furnished a local sensation for Canaan, Conn., has been shot, or that any one attempted to shoot it, but declares that an ordinary shot gun would have no more effect upon it than a pop-gun on an iron-clad, and a man would be called crazy who attempted it. Of its history and appearance he gives the following graphic account:

"It has been seen every morning for the last fifteen years in nearly the same spot. It was seen but a short time ago by a gentleman of the highest respectability, who is well known and no one would think of doubting his statements. His name is A. Boardman, a skillful machinist, recently employed by Mr. Ames in, the manufacture of his celebrated wrought iron cannon at Falls Village. Mr. B. was passing along the highway where the snake had been generally seen, not thinking anything about it, when suddenly his eye caught something lying under a large elm tree, which looked like the shadow of a large limb. Its shining brilliancy and the real shadow of the tree being opposite from where from where the object lay, the thought instantly entered his mind that it was nothing less than the big snake he had heard so much about, and so it proved to be for it instantly started for the swamp. The animal having to cross a road, he had a fair view of his snakeship. A thrill of horror rushed through his veins as the monster crushed its way through the brush with almost the speed of lightning into the swamp, and was almost immediately lost to sight. Mr. Boardman thinks it would measure thirty inches around its body in the largest place. In fact, it appeared to be nearly of one size, except three feet from the end of the tail, which tapered considerably towards the end. Its length he should judge to be not far from twenty-eight or thirty feet. Its skin was so black and bright that it fairly dazzled. The farmers in the vicinity complain less of the depredations of the animal than formerly. On the borders of the swamp where it lives, graze large herds of cows, and it is among these that it gets its living. The owners of these cows have for some time, ast wondered why some of their best milkers had failed to give their usual quantity of milk; as it is only in the morning the owners miss it, they have come to the conclusion that the snake sucks them, and thus gets its living. It is well known that snakes are fond of warm milk, and it is this kind of food, no doubt, that has caused this one to grow to such immense proportions. There is a reward of one hundred dollars offered by a private citizen for its capture alive, and fifty if killed. There is a strong pressure bearing on the town authorities to offer a reward large enough to secure its capture or destruction, and the subject will be brought before our annual town meeting the first Monday in October. Hundreds who attended the camp meeting lately held here came more for the purpose of seeing where this monster snake lived, than to seek for the straight and narrow way. Few could be induced to stay on the ground nights for fear it might make them a visit.

It was this one thing more than any other that made the meeting almost a failure. One man has determined to sell his farm and leave the place. His wife has already left and says she will never live on the place again until the snake is killed. There is a perfect panic among the people, and what will be the result time only can determine.

CASEY on "Tactics," and "Butterfield on Picket Duty," admirable and interesting as they are to men of blood-thirsty tastes and habits, have nevertheless been made the subject of criticism by subalterns whose practical experience in the field entitles their opinions to be received with respect. We were moved to say this by way of introducing an incident sent to us by a party who must be an excessive Quaker, as he signs himself "A Quaker Friend." The Friend says:

Before the army of the Potomac moved on its grand march across the Rapidan, and thence to Petersburg, a board of officers was in session examining into the merits of many officers. General Gibbon was President. Captain M'Anally—"Little Mac," of the Sixty-ninth Pennsylvania—was the "subject" under investigation, to whom General G. put this question:

"Captain, what think you of 'Casey on Tactics?'"

"Kaysay, did ye say, Gineral?"

"Yes, Casey."

"Not Gineral Kaysay,"?" said Mac, with a merry twinkle in his eye.

"Yes General Casey."

"Well, Gineral, all I've got to say is, that I don't think much of him, for I shtopped him at Fair Oaks!"—which was literally true. Mac being under Couch, who checked Casey's flying troops and encountered the General himself.

The General proceeded: Well, Captain, what do you think of 'Butterfield on Picket?"

"Not Gineral Butterfield, sure?" said Mac.

"Yes, General Butterfield."

"Then I don't think much of him, for he says: 'Shtick your vidette fifty yards in front of your picket;' and if I had done that, sure me men would be in the bottom of the Rappahannock!"

Mac was passed, but as he left the room General G. quietly remarked to the Board: "I would like to have had the Captain's opinion of Gibbon on Artillery,' but I'm afraid he would be too many guns for me!"

FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE FROM INSTANT DEATH.

ONE of the most miraculous and frightful accidents we have ever been called upon to record occurred in this place, on Friday morning last. Below we give the full particulars:

No one of our town or neighborhood has heard, without pain, of the unfortunate death of George Shaffer, the circumstances of which were truly appalling. He had retired, it seems, to his room soon after the arrival of the late train from Pottsville, on Thursday night, on which he was engaged, and after undressing for bed, had gone to the window to close the shutters, and in reaching out to unfasten them, lost his balance and fell to the porch below, a distance of some forty feet. The room is on the fourth floor of the Repplier House and the window is very near the floor. The fall produced a fracture of the thigh and a compound fracture of the left leg, driving one of the fragments some distance through the flesh. This occurred about midnight, and he lay where he fell, partially conscious, but unable to move or give any alarm, until between five and six in the morning, when he was discovered by Capt. Leib who was on his way to the Post Office. He was carried to a room and physicians immediately summoned, who could find no other external evidences of injury, except those already mentioned. The most astonishing feature of the accident was that he was not instantly killed, but after receiving so severe injuries, and lying exposed to a cold night air, with no other clothing than a shirt, he was found after nearly six hours perfectly conscious and sensible of indescribable pain. He passed through Friday much in the same condition, the powers of life struggling but feebly for the mastery. On Saturday there seemed more of an attempt at reaction, and he rallied and seemed lively, and disposed to converse naturally with his friends. About noon the physicians thought it safe to administer chloroform and reduce the fractures, of the leg, which they did successfully. Through the remainder of Saturday he continue to improve apparently, until that night, when symptoms of concussion of the brain and spine began to develop themselves. These symptoms continued to increase through the night and on Sunday morning he became entirely unconscious, and continued so, rapidly sinking, until Monday morning at eight o'clock, when he expired.

By this truly appalling accident, our community has received a shock from which it will be long in recovering. Thus has passed from among us one of our most promising young men, a most amiable companion in the social circle, and a generous, energetic and popular business man. Of this the anxiety and unceasing attentions of his many friends, was a gratifying evidence, whilst the faithful and untiring devotion of the truly noble hostess of the Repplier House to the slightest wants of the sufferer, must ever command the respect and gratitude of a large circle of friends.—Ashland Advocate.

RITUALISM is not to be permitted to crush out, without a struggle, the noble spirit of Protestantism that pervades this country. The great West is coming up manfully to the contest. Illinois, through her city of Freeport, sends forth no uncertain sound. In that goodly city resides Mr. S——, a clever gentleman, brought up in the strictest rules of Presbyterianism—so much so that, until within a few years past, he had never listened to the Liturgy of "the Church." He is, besides, an active Radical politician. During the early part of Buchanan's administration Episcopal services were for the first time held in Freeport, in the Presbyterian Church, kindly tendered for that purpose by the trustees, one of whom was S——. In company with a friend he attended, deporting himself with becoming gravity until the prayer "For the President of the United States and all others in Authority" was read. This was too much for his Republicanism. Turning to his friend, he said: "Let's get out of this! that fellow's a Copperhead!"—and they left. Through the efforts of a Puseyite constable of the town he has since been induced to review his opinion, and is now regarded as "sound."

HARD ON THE OFFICERS.—The lying down anecdote below, comes to us from a re-li-able friend:

Trees, stumps and rocks, were sometimes in demand during the progress of a fight. A good lying place (not a lawyer's office) might often be turned into cash.

As for instance—a member of company F. Fourteenth N. C. I,—by the way, the company with which Governor Vance entered the war as captain—was giving his friends at home an account of a very fierce fight on the Peninsula. He said: "We were marching through a thick wood to flank a portion of the enemy, and just as we entered the edge of an old field, three or four Yankee batteries opened on us at short range, with grape and canister. Such a storm I never saw since I was born! The colonel shouted out, 'lie down,' and down we fell quick, but the dirt and gravel flew all over us, and there was not a thing in the world to shield us from the terrible storm, and we had to just lie still and take it."

"Why didn't you get behind a tree?" suggested a deeply interested listener.

"Tree, the devil," said company F. "there wasn't enough trees for the officers!"

ALL but one county official—from Minnesota makes the Radical majority 5,364—a loss of 4,844. The total poll was about 64,000, an increase over 1866 of about 22,000. Negro suffrage was defeated by 1,248 majority.

JONATHAN presented himself and his intended for the purpose of being married. Being questioned if they had been published, he said—"Oh, I guess so; for I told Uncle Ben, and he told his wife more'n a week ago."

A MATRIMONIAL INCIDENT.—The Lewistown Democrat says the following incident occurred in Juniata county a short time ago: A rather good looking stranger, engaged in peddling spectacles, visited the house of a farmer and exhibited his stock to the old lady. She tried several, and finally one suited her exactly, but she had "no money to buy with." Peddler pressed her to purchase. She reiterated the fact that she had no money, but jokingly remarked, "I'll trade one of my daughters for a pair of spectacles." Upon this the eldest of the two girls spoke up—"You needn't trade me, mother, for I won't have him." Thereupon the peddler turned to the younger and said, "Well, will you have me?" The answer was promptly, "Yes!" Accordingly the spectacles were handed over, and arrangements at once made for the wedding. That night the happy pair (who had never seen each other before that day), were united in the holy bands of matrimony by Esquire L. A short honeymoon of three days passed pleasantly enough, the peddler going out on a trading expedition each morning and returning faithfully in the evening. All seemed delighted, the old folks as well as the young, the new-made husband being exceedingly amiable and apparently a perfect gentleman. One or two nights he absented himself, but made satisfactory explanation of the circumstance, and besides made additional amends by presenting his wife with a sum of money sufficient to buy a new dress and pair of shoes, both of which she very much needed. Another night the family roof covered the gay spectacle man, but that was the last. He took his departure next morning as usual, but failed to return at even, and, (to make a long story short), has never been seen by the interested parties since. Who he is and where he came from, are alike mysteries, and as for the name he went by whilst making his interesting sojourn in Lost Creek Valley, that was probably assumed for the occasion, and will hardly help to discover whither he has gone.

ABEL PERKINS, of S——, had a spite against Squire B—— of the same town. Some one remarked in his hearing one day that the squire was a mean man. "Mean," said Abel, "guses he is, A yard of black tape would make him a suit of mourning, and then he'd have enough left for a weed on his hat,"

"What do you call this?" said Mr. Jones, gently tapping his breakfast with his fork.

"Call it?" snarled the landlady, "what do you call it?"

"Well, really," said Mr. Jones, reflectively, "I don't know. There is hardly hair enough in it for mortar, but there is too much if intended for hash."

A new style of hoop skirt is shortly to be introduced, which will enable a lady and gentleman to walk together more conveniently.

A little girl was very fond of preaching to her dolls. Her mother overheard her one day reproving one for being so wicked. "Oh, you naughty, sinfull child," she said, shaking the waxen limbs, "you'll just go to that lake of brimstone and molasses, and you won't burn up—you'll just sizzle!"

A DEN OF SNAKES.—On Friday, the 53d ult., D. T. Wise, of Trout Run, while in search of a flock of sheep, on the mountain, about one mile from the village, was startled by the rattling of a monster snake, and seeing, to his surprise, that he was surrounded by the poisonous reptiles, he commenced the massacre by shooting. He fired four times, which started them toward their den; then seizing a stout cudgel he finished the escaping snakes. Upon gathering together and counting them they amounted to fifty-two killed. He then left on his journey, and marked the spot to visit on his return, or at some future day. Two days afterwards he returned, accompanied by his brother and A. T. Bess. Arriving at the den they discovered a monstrous copperhead snake lying at his content over the entrance of the den. Killing him caused a buzzing noise among the rocks, and the party commenced removing the stone, finding and killing six more copperheads, eight rattle, and three black snakes; killing in all sixty rattle, seven copper and three black snakes—sum total seventy snakes.—West Branch Bulletin.

ARTIFICIAL DIAMONDS.—Although all the known sources of diamonds in the world are running low, astonishing quantities continue to be supplied to the trade in Europe, and as these are unmistakably genuine, dealers are greatly exercised to know where they come from; while some are of the opinion that certain parties have discovered, and keep secret, certain immensely productive mines in the East, others are quite as confident that some lucky chemist produces them by artificial means, and has thus far kept this great secret in purifying and chrystalizing carbon to himself. A man named Keepping, or Keppich, of Breslau, who has made immense sales of diamonds of late in Paris, and who has kept all the cutters of Antwerp busy for some weeks, is thought to hold the key to the mystery. So say the late foreign papers.

ON Tuesday two children of Mr. Amos Camplin, residing on the T. R. Hazard farm in this town, were playing near the orchard; one of them got upon the wall, when a donkey, which was kept in the orchard, seized the child and dragging him down, commenced to trample and bite him. Meanwhile, the other child, seeing what occurred, made for the house and informed its mother that little Horace had been killed by the donkey. The mother hastened to the orchard and saw the terrible spectacle of the brute knawing the poor child's throat and face. The poor woman gave a scream which so startled the donkey that he retreated a few paces, when the mother rescued the child from further harm. The throat and face of the child were shockingly mutilated. We understand the child died on Wednesday.—Narragansett (R. I.) Time.

THE credit system has been carried to a pretty fine point in some of the rural districts, if we may judge from the following dialogue, said to have recently occurred between a customer and the proprietor:

"How's trade, squire?"

"Dun anything terday?"

"Wall, only a little on credit. Aunt Betsy Pushal has bort an egg's worth of tea, and got trust for it till her speckled pullet lays."

PREDESTINATION.—A Missouri paper contains the following which will pass without much urging:

"Do you believe in predestination?" said a captain of a Mississippi steamer to a Calvinistic clergyman who happened to be traveling with him.

"Of course I do."

"And you also believe that what is to be will be?"

"Certainly."

"Well, I'm glad to hear it."

"Why?"

"Because I intend to pass that boat ahead in fifteen minutes, if there be any virtue in pine knots and loaded safety valves. So don't be alarmed, for if the bilers ha'nt to burst, they won't."

Here the divine commenced putting on his hat, and began to look like backing out, which the captain seeing, observed.

"I thought you believed in predestination, and what is to be will be?"

"So I do, but I prefer being a little nearer the stern when it takes place.

INDIAN STORY.—A romantic young lady, whose mind was deeply imbued with reading the "Sorrows of Werter," and other novels of the exquisitely sentimental school, approached a stalwart savage whose sombre visage indicated suffering of some kind, and addressed him thus:

"Why droops the eagle eye of the forest chief? Is he brooding over the wrongs of his race? Does the memory of the red warrior revert to the past when his proud ancestors roamed through the mighty forests, and enjoyed the primeval glories of nature, now sadly marred by the ax and plow of the unsympathizing rustic?"

The answer of the forest chief with the drooping eagle eye was a little shocking to her refined sensibility:

"No! white man gib Injun heap to much whishky. Injun big drunk last night; Injun sick, by and by Injun puke; Injun well again—ugh!"

IMPEACHMENT.

IT has already been stated that a majority of the committee has made a report favoring the impeachment of the President. Two Republicans, one the Chairman of the committee, report against the whole scheme, in a very able argument from their stand point; and Judge Marshall and his Democratic colleague, also make a report adverse to impeachment.

The points made are that impeachment will only lie for an "indictable offence," and that no such offense has been proved against the President; that there is nothing charged against him which would convict him in a court of criminal jurisdiction, for any offense now known to the law; and Congress cannot declare a thing to be a "high crime or misdemeanor," and then proceed to try the President for that offense. The position is strongly fortified by abundant decisions of the courts, and able legal authorities.

The charges against the President are:

I. "Usurpation of power and violation of law."

II. "That the President has corruptly used the appointing power."

III. "That the President has corruptly used the pardoning power."

IV. "That the President has corruptly used the veto power."

V. "That the President has corruptly disposed of the public property of the United States."

VI. "That the President has corruptly interfered in elections, and committed acts and conspired with others to commit acts which, in contemplation of the Constitution, are high crimes and misdemeanors."

In summing up, Judge Wilson says: "The case upon the law and the testimony fails. We therefore declare that the case before us, presented by the testimony and measured by the law, does not disclose such high crimes and misdemeanors, within the meaning of the Constitution, as require the interposition of the Constitutional power of this House."

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

SENATE.

MONDAY Dec. 2. The Senate met at 11½ o'clock. A few bills were offered and at 12 o'clock the first session of the Fortieth Congress ended, and the second session was immediately called to order. The Secretary was directed to inform the House, and a committee was appointed to notify the President. Mr. Stewart and others introduced a number of bills including one for the repeal of the Cotton tax. The committee appointed to wait on the President, returned, and stated that he would communicate with the Senate to-morrow. The Senate then adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The House convened at 10 1-2 o'clock. On motion of Mr. Blaine, the Committee on Banking and Currency were instructed to inquire into the expediency of changing the tax law in respect to National Bank stocks. Mr. Wilson asked & obtained leave to make a personal explanation in regard to an editorial in the Intelligencer, in which Mr. Churchill is spoken of harshly. Under the call of States, numerous bills and resolutions were offered and referred. Mr. Ashley introduced a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution; referred to the Judiciary Committee. The amendment declares all persons born or naturalized in the United States, citizens; makes all such over twenty one years of age, electors; makes it incumbent upon the States to provide public schools for all children; renders ineligible to office certain classes of rebels, and provides that the validity of the public debt shall not be questioned, nor the rebel debt be acknowledged, nor payment made for loss or emancipation of slaves. At 12 o'clock the Speaker announced the first session ended, and the second session commenced. One hundred and forty-six members answered to their names. A committee was appointed to wait on the President. The Committee on Elections announced that Mr. Black, of Kentucky, was not entitled to the seat, and that Mr. Golladay was. The subject was postponed till Wednesday, when both claimants will be heard. Mr. Robinson, as a question of privilege, offered a resolution looking to the impeachment of W. B. West Consul at Dublin; referred At 2.30 the House adjourned.

SENATE.

TUESDAY Dec. 3—After the reading of the Journal, Mr. Buckalew moved to amend by striking out the word "Honorable," placed before members' names according to long established precedent. Several petitions were presented, when the Senate proceeded to the election of Standing Committees, dispensing by unanimous consent with vote by ballot. The President's Message was then presented by the Private Secretary of the President, and its reading commenced at half past twelve. The Report of the Secretary of the Treasury and Comptroller of the currency were also presented, and after a resolution relative to the National Banks the Senate adjourned.

THE President's message is generally conceded by the leading journals to be an able though rather lengthy document. He takes a very decided stand against the advisability of giving the negroes the right to vote, if Congress possessed the power. He remonstrates strongly against the reconstruction measures of Congress stating that he is "unable to communicate any definite adjustment, satisfactory to the American people," and that there is at this time "no Union as our fathers understood the term." He attributes to the Tenure of Office Bill the "enormous and disgraceful, waste of the public revenue," restricting as it does the President's power of appointment and removal.

The message is written in a bold and manly style, and although an impeachment hangs over his head, he fearlessly attacks and exposes the absurd measures of Congress. Even the Radicals of the House admit that although there are in it some things to condemn, there are many worthy of attention.

MARQUAND, Vice President, or to CLARK, DODGE & CO., corner of Wall and William sts., N. Y. City.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM BARON SOLOMON ROTHSCHILD.

Paris, 8th April, 1864, 23 Rue Fauby, St. Honore

Will you be kind enough to have forwarded to me here 20 bottles of your Indian Liniment; if you will send at the same time the account, I will forward you the amount through Messrs. Belmont & Co., New York.

Baron Solomon Rothschild having recommended to many of his friends Major LANE'S LINIMENT, and they being desirous to procure it, he should advise him to establish a depot in Paris.

THE INDAN LINIMENT,

As a relief, ever ready; as a killer of pain, taken inwardly, or outwardly applied, has no equal. For the relief and cure of Rheumatic and Neuralgic Affections, Sprains, Bruises, etc., it is unequalled. It is also most efficacious, taken inwardly, in the cure of Cholera, Cramps and Pains in the Stomach, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Cholera Morbus, Cholera Infantum, etc., and is without exception the most wonderful Panacea the world affords. No Family should be without it. Every Traveler by land or sea should have a bottle. Miners and Farmers residing at a distance from Physicians should keep it constantly on hand. In case of Accidents, and sudden attacks of Stomach Complaints, its value cannot be estimated. Inquire for Major Lane's Indian Liniment, and take no other. Price, 50 cts. per bottle. For sale at wholesale and retail by Demas Barnes etc.Co., 21 Park Row, N. Y., Gale etc. Robinson, 186 Greenwich st. N. Y.; F. C. Wells & Co., 192 Fulton-st., N. Y.; Chas. N. Crittenden, 38 6th Ave., F. Y., and by respectable Druggists throughout the world. None genuine unless signed by John Thos. Lane, and countersigned by J. T. Lane & Co., Proprietors 163 Broadway, N. Form of Proposal, Guarantee, and Certificate.

PROPOSAL.

The undersigned ——— ———, whose post office address is ———, county of ———, State of ———, proposes to convey the mails of the United States, from July 1, 1868, to June 30, 1872, on route No. ———, between ——— and ——— under the advertisement of the Postmaster General, dated October 31, 1867, with "celerity, certainty, and security," for the annual sum of ——— dollars.

This proposal is made with full knowledge of the distance of the route, the weight of the mail to be carried, and all other particulars in reference to the route and service; and also after careful examination of the laws and instructions attached to the advertisement.

Dated (Signed.)

GUARANTEE.

The undersigned, residing at ———, State of ———, undertake that, if the foregoing bid for carrying the mail on route No. ——— be accepted by the Postmaster General, the bidder shall, prior to the 1st day of July, 1868, enter into the required obligation or contract to perform the service proposed, with good and sufficient sureties.

This we do, understanding distinctly the obligations and liabilities assumed by guarantors under the 27th section of the act of Congress of July 2, 1836.

Dated (Signed by two guarantors.)

CERTIFICATE.

The undersigned, postmaster at ———, State of ———, certifies, UNDER HIS OATH OF OFFICE, that he is acquainted with the above guarantors, and knows them to be men of property, and able to make good their guarantee.

Dated (Signed.)

INSTRUCTIONS TO BIDDERS AND POSTMASTERS;

CONTAINING ALSO CONDITIONS TO BE INCORPORATED IN THE CONTRACTS TO THE EXTENT THE DEPARTMENT MAY DEEM PROPER.

1. Seven minutes are allowed to each intermediate office, when not otherwise specified, for assorting the mails; but on railroad and steamboat routes there is to be no more delay than is sufficient for an exchange of the mail pouches.

2. On railroad and steamboat lines, and other routes where the mode of conveyance admits of it, the special agents of the Post Office Department, also post office blanks, mail bags, locks and keys, are to be conveyed without extra charge.

3. On railroad and steamboat lines the route agents of the Department, also the British and Canada mails, when offered, and the agents accompanying them, are to be conveyed without charge; and for the use of the United States agents a commodious car, or part of a car, properly lighted, warmed, and furnished, and adapted to the convenient separation and due security of the mails, is to be provided by the contractor, under the direction of the Department.

Railroad and steamboat companies are required to take the mail from and deliver it into the post offices at the beginning and end of their routes, and to and from all offices not more than eighty rods from a station or landing. Proposals may be submitted by the companies for the performance of all other side service—that is, for offices over eighty rods from a station or landing.

There will be "way bills" prepared by postmasters, or other agents of the Department, to accompany the mails conveyed on railroads and steamers, specifying the number and destination of the several bags. On other principal routes, likewise, receipts will be required and way bills forwarded; the latter to be examined by the several postmasters, to insure regularity in the delivery of mails.

4. No pay will be made for trips not performed; and for each of such omissions, not satisfactorily explained, three times the pay of the trip will be deducted. For arrivals so far behind time as to break connexion with depending mails, and not sufficiently excused, one-fourth of the compensation for the trip is subject to forfeiture. For repeated delinquencies of the kind herein specified, enlarged penalties, proportioned to the nature thereof, and the importance of the mail, may be made.

5. For leaving behind or throwing off the mails, or any portion of them, for the admission of passengers, or for being concerned in setting up or running an express conveying intelligence in advance of the mail, a quarter's pay may be deducted.

6. Fines will be imposed, unless the delinquency be promptly and satisfactorily explained by certificates of postmasters or the affidavits of other credible persons, for failing to arrive in contract time; for neglecting to take the mail from, or deliver it into, a post office; for suffering it to be wet, injured, destroyed, robbed, or lost; and for refusing, after demand, to convey the mail as frequently as the contractor runs, or is concerned in running, a coach, car, or steamboat on a route.

7. The Postmaster General may annul the contract for repeated failures to run agreeably to contract; for violating the post office laws, or disobeying the instructions of the Department; for refusing to discharge a carrier when required by the Department to do so; for running an express as aforesaid; or for transporting persons or packages conveying mailable matter out of the mail.

8. The Postmaster General may order an increase of service on a route by allowing therefor a pro rata increase on the contract pay. He may change schedules of departures and arrivals in all cases, and particularly to make them conform to connexions with railroads, without increase of pay, provided the running time be not abridged. He may also order an increase of speed, allowing, within the restrictions of the law, a pro rata increase of pay for the additional stock or carriers, if any. The contractor may, however, in the case of increase of speed, relinquish the contract, by giving prompt notice to the Department that he prefers doing so to carrying the order into effect. The Postmaster General may also discontinue or curtail the service, in whole or in part, in order to place on the route a greater degree of service, or whenever the public interests, in his judgment, shall require such discontinuance or curtailment for any other cause; he allowing as full indemnity to contractor one month's extra pay on the amount of service dispensed with, and a pro rata compensation for the amount of service retained and continued.

9. Payments will be made by collections from or drafts on postmasters, or otherwise, after the expiration of each quarter—say in November, February, May, and August.

10. The distances are given according to the best information; but no increased pay will be allowed should they be greater than advertised, if the points to be supplied are correctly stated. Bidders must inform themselves on this point, and also in reference to the weight of the mail, the condition of roads, hills, streams, &c., and all toll bridges, ferries, or obstructions of any kind by which expense may be incurred. No claim for additional pay, based on such ground, can be considered; nor for alleged mistakes or misapprehension as to the degree of service; nor for bridges destroyed, ferries discontinued, or other obstructions increasing distance, occurring during the contract term. Offices established after this advertisement is issued, and also during the contract term, are to be visited without extra pay, if the distance be not increased.

11. Bidders are cautioned to mail their proposals in time to reach the Department by the day and hour named, (3 p. m., March 4, 1868,) for bids received after that time will not be considered in competition with a bid of reasonable amount received in time. Neither can bids be considered which are without the guarantee required by law and a certificate of the sufficiency of such a guarantee.

12. Bidders should first propose for service strictly according to the advertisement, and then, if they desire, separately for different service; and if the regular bid be the lowest offered for the advertised service, the other propositions may be considered.

13. There should be but one route bid for in a proposal. Consolidated or combination bids "proposing one sum for two or more routes" are forbidden by law, and cannot be considered.

14. The route, the service, the yearly pay, the name and residence of the bidder, (that is, his usual post office address,) and the name of each member of a firm, where a company offers, should be distinctly stated.

15. Bidders are requested to use, as far as practicable, the printed proposals furnished by the Department, to write out in full the sum of their bids, and to retain copies of them.

Altered bids should not be submitted; nor should bids once submitted be withdrawn. No withdrawal of a bidder or guarantor will be allowed unless the withdrawal is dated and received before the last day for receiving proposals.

Each bid must be guaranteed by two responsible persons. The bid and guarantee should be signed plainly with the full name of each person.

The department reserves the right to reject any bid which may be deemed extravagant, and also to disregard the bids of failing contractors and bidders.

16. The bid should be sealed, superscribed "Mail Proposals, State of Pennsylvania," addressed "Second Assistant Postmaster General, Contract Office," and sent by mail, not by or to an agent; and postmasters will not enclose proposals (or letters of any kind) in their quarterly returns.

17. The contracts are to be executed and returned to the Department by or before the 1st day of July, 1868; but the service must be begun on that day or on the mail day next after it, whether the contracts be executed or not.

Transfers of contracts, or of interest in contracts, are forbidden by law, and consequently cannot be allowed. Bidders will therefore take notice that they will be expected to perform the service accepted to them through the whole term of the contract.

18. Postmasters at offices on or near railroads, but more than eighty rods from a station, will, immediately after the 4th of March next, report their exact distance from the nearest station and how they are otherwise supplied with the mail, to enable the Postmaster General to direct a mail-messenger supply from the 1st of July next.

19. Section eighteen of an act of Congress approved March 3, 1845, provides that contracts for the transportation of the mail shall be let, "in every case, to the lowest bidder tendering sufficient guarantees for faithful performance, without other reference to the mode of such transportation than may be necessary to provide for the due celerity, certainty, and security of such transportation." Under this law bids that propose to transport the mails with "celerity, certainty, and security," having been decided to be the only legal bids, are construed as providing for the entire mail, however large, and whatever may be the mode of conveyance necessary to insure its "celerity, certainty and security," and have the preference over all others, and no others are considered.

20. A modification of a bid in any of its essential terms is tantamount to a new bid, and cannot be received, so as to interfere with regular competition, after the last hour set for receiving bids, making a new bid, with guarantee and certificate is the only way to modify a previous bid.

21. Postmasters are to be careful not to certify the sufficiency of guarantors or sureties without knowing that they are persons of sufficient responsibility; a disregard of this instruction by postmasters is a violation of their oath of office, subjecting them to immediate removal. All bidders, guarantors, and sureties are distinctly notified that on a failure to enter into or perform the contracts for the service proposed for in the accepted bids, their legal liabilities will be enforced against them.

22. Present contractors, and persons known at the Department, must, equally with others, procure guarantors and certificates of their sufficiency substantially in the forms above prescribed. The certificate of sufficiency must be signed by a postmaster, or by a judge of a court of record. No other will be admitted.

ALEX. W. RANDALL,
Postmaster General.

THE AMERICAN HAY KNIFE AND FORK.—We the undersigned citizens of Columbia County witnessed the trial of hay forks on the farm of Mr. Pursel, in Hemlock Township, on Monday, May 7, 1866, between the American Hay Knife and Fork manufactured by SLIFER, WALLS, SHRINER & Co., of Lewisburg, Pa., and the Rundel's Patent Hay Hook. The American Fork lifted more hay in one draught than the Rundel in three. We are satisfied it will take as much hay into the mow as two good horses can draw. We also saw it cutting hay, and think it cannot be beat as a hay knife, and cheerfully recommend it as the best hay knife and knife we have ever seen.

BLOOMSBURG, FRIDAY, DEC. 6, 1867.

ATTENTION is invited to the advertisement in another column of Messrs. Stanton Brothers & Co., who are offering large inducements in the way of Watches.

"THE Kaleidoscope" for this week is written by a Virginia Gentleman, from whose genial pen we are promised several more articles, descriptive of the scenery and history of that State.

WE dont hear the Radicals shouting as much for Grant as they did. Has he, too, like Meade, Hancock, and Sherman, become disloyal. If they must have a military man, we would suggest J. Pope —the Bull Run man.

WE understand that P. John's hands, like his party have deserted him, and that he is now setting type himself, thereby assuming his devil's occupation. We are not surprised at them, for rats will leave a stinking ship.

A DWELLING house belonging to Henry J. Edwards in Briar Creek township was destroyed by fire Wednesday night. The family lost most of their furniture and clothing. There was a small insurance on the building.

How now, ye despicable insects! Loyal Leagues! etc., What say you? a radical Senate endorses Jeff. Davis' bondsman, and confirms Horace Greeley as Minister to Austria. He will most likely take Jeff. along as private Secretary.

COMPLAINTS are made to us by some of our subscribers at Black Creek, Luzerne county, that their papers are either not received at all or very irregularly. As the papers are mailed every week from this office, the fault must lie at the intermediate offices. Will the postmasters look to this?

WE have just returned from a trip to Washington and are convinced that the impeachment project will not succeed. Even Radical members are disgusted because Butler, Ashley & Co., after two years labor have failed to produce an iota of evidence that would convict the President of a single misdemeanor.

ON Friday last a fine horse was stolen from Mr. John Keller at Mifflin. The following Monday a man by the name of Amandus Seybert was arrested in Union County by a son of Mr. Keller, having the horse in his possession. He is now lodged in jail. This man is suspected of another theft of a horse buggy and harness at Beaver Valley some time since, although it has not been proved against him.

GEN. HANCOCK in assuming command of the Fifth Military District—lately under Sheridan—has issued an admirable order to the people, announcing that his aim will be to act with the people, and not in opposition to them. He has also revoked his predecessor's orders relieving certain officials, and reinstates them. Of course he will catch radical thunder, but he has faced rebel fire too often to be scared by "home guards."

NOW, voters of Columbia, is the time to subscribe for the COLUMBIAN. The long winter evenings are at hand, and you and your families need something useful and entertaining to read. Besides, Congress has just begun a new session, and it is the duty and interest of all to know its action on the various political and financial questions which agitate the country. An unusually exciting Presidential canvas has also begun, and it is the duty of each man not only to take a paper like the COLUMBIAN but to aid in extending its circulation among the people. Let them have light—let them know the principles and policy of the Radical leaders, and we are bound to triumph.

FERNANDO WOOD, the Mozart candidate for Mayor of New York aided by the Republicans has been badly beaten by John T. Hoffman the regular Democratic nominee and present incumbent. The Republican papers before the election, claimed that a union of the Republican and Mozart votes would elect Wood, but the result does not seem to show it. Hoffman has a clear majority of more than 21000 over both Wood and Darling. This will, or ought to lay Mr. Wood on the shelf for some time, and should satisfy the Republicans as to the value of their votes.

Fernando begged the people to make him Mayor once more but they Wood not.

A GLANCE at the business columns of any flourishing newspaper will show to what devices expert advertisers have learned to resort, in the effort to entrap public attention and fix it on their wares. People have been so often beguiled into reading advertisements, under the hallucination that they were tales, poems, sermons, or what not, that they have become weary and abnormally suspicious. The public has to be regularly "stalked" by the advertisers, and nothing is too sacred or fine to escape use as a stalking-horse. Should we observe the "Ten Commandments!" In stirring capitals in a newspaper, we could rely on finding underneath ten travesties, cautioning you to buy no other goods before Smith's, and so on. The most thrilling novels culminate in sewing-machines. Suppose one's eye should be attracted by the well-worn line, "You may break, you may shatter the vase if you will"—what ought he to expect for the rhyme? Why, something informing him that by saving the pieces he has a vase still—through the medium, of course, of somebody's "adhesive compound, invaluable to all housekeepers." Typography is also pressed into the advertiser's service, and white letters on black ground, crooked letters, fat letters, lean letters, whatever can command the eye, abound. Advertising has risen almost to the dignity of a profession, and puts all other professions under contribution.—Exchange.

WITHIN the whole range of tonic and alterative medicines known, none is entitled to more consideration than the Peruvian Syrup. In all cases of enfeebled and debilitated constitution it is the very remedy needed. The most positive proof of this can be adduced.

IN Minnesota, negro suffrage has been defeated by about 1000.

THE KALEIDOSCOPE:

——A heap of [illegible] its fascinations and its vast concerns.

NO. XLVII.

AMONG THE RECONSTRUCTED.

FROM Washington to Richmond is one continual progress through historical scenes and memories. Perhaps no other section of our country affords so many opportunities for philosophic thought or stirring souvenirs;—dating as do the events that here have their origin, from the earliest period of our history to the more modern, though not less interesting period, of armed revolution and political counter-revolution. The hallowed names of Washington, Jefferson, Patrick Henry, and of Clay, mingle with the names of modern heroes and unite even with the duskier memories of the earlier inhabitants of this portion of our fair continent. We have only to close our eyes, mentally speaking, and we see the untutored Indian maiden—all untutored, save by love—interpose herself between the white Intruder and the descending war-club. We close them again, and we behold that touching "last interview" between George Washington and his aged and noble mother—worthy mother of such a son! Again, and we see the Confederate flag flaunting even within sight of the Capitol. And lastly, a proud, yet noble people, punished worse than history parallels, or Heaven, itself, decrees against its outlaws;—for there is no crime to which God refuses pardon.

Pocahontas, Capt. John Smith, Geo. Washington, Thomas Jefferson; the silver tongued Henry; the toga draped Marshall; with, of later days, the boy soldier Ellsworth, "Stonewall" Jackson; Henry A. Wise and Hunnicutt;—friends and foes, dusky Indians, and honest men and villains, all are jumbled up in one grand melange. Like the cards of some historical game, upset and mingled by a child! Is there not ample food for thought?

Leaving Washington in the fine boats which carry the passenger part of the way to Richmond, via the Acquia Creek and Fredericksburg route, we first pass to the left, on our way down the noble Potomac, the gloomy walls of the Arsenal, where the conspirators, Payne, Atzerott, Harold and Mrs. Surratt were hung; and where the remains of the assassin Booth rest, if rest they can! Soon after, on the Virginia side, we see the town of Alexandria, and above the ware-houses that line the wharfs, for Alexandria was once quite a commercial place, we view the flag-staff of the Marshall House where Ellsworth was killed. Further down the river, some fifteen miles from the Capital of our nation, the poetical tribute of the tolling bell, denotes that we are passing Mount Vernon, the home of the "Father of his country," and replete with his memories.

The scenery, which has been increasing in beauty and majesty all along, seems to culminate in grandeur at this lovely spot, so sacred to every American. Here, the river is broad, and of that peculiarly etherial tint that has gained for it the name of the "blue Potomac." The shore on either side rises high in bold, forest covered hills; almost bluffs sometimes; with intervening vistas of purplish distance, showing where some creek or inlet runs. At this season of the year too, when the trees have put on the gorgeous robes of Autumn; of gold and brown, and of flashing red; with that magic of frost, that makes every leaf a flower in hue, and every bunch of withered grass a perfume; the scene was indescribably beautiful.

After one leaves Mt. Vernon the scenery becomes tamer, especially on the Maryland side of the river, until a long out-jutting wharf, with the charred timbers of burned storehouses on it, and an earthwork peeping out from a hill-top beyond, shows that we have arrived at Acquia Creek Landing; once the base of supplies of our army. Here we find the cars of the Fredericksburg & Richmond Railroad awaiting us, and very glad we are to get away. For, today, this once busy spot is nothing but a solitary looking wilderness, with its long wharf, and without other signs of civilization than the remains of an old white house, on a hill across the creek, perforated through and through with shells. Even the locomotive seems afraid to disturb those silent echoes with its shrill whistle, and glides quietly and swiftly away, without a sign.

The country still continues to bear this wild, solitary stamp, until the little town of Falmouth, a suburb of Fredericksburg is reached. Fredericksburg! It seems but yesterday that we were waiting anxiously to hear of Burnside's having stormed the town or of how Sedgwick was faring there; and yet everything is as quiet there as though gunpowder had never been invented.

Fredericksburg was so named after Prince Frederick, father of George III, and is, in every respect, a pilgrimage spot to every true patriot. Near here was the Washington farm, where the hero of all future ages passed his youth. Here too, rest the remains of Mary, the mother of Washington, under, we regret to say, an unfinished tomb. And to the Pennsylvanian it may be interesting to know that the first regular iron works ever erected in this country was one built by Governor Spotswood, at Germanna, near Fredericksburg. General Hugh Mercer, of Revolutionary fame; the intimate friend of Washington, and who, although a native of Scotland, came across the broad ocean to lay down his life for American freedom, was also a resident of Fredericksburg. Mercer's history was one of the most romantic of that stirring age. In one of his battles with the Indians in the Indian War of 1755, it is related, he was wounded in the wrist by a musket ball. Pursued by his savage foe he was compelled to take refuge in a hollow tree, where, although the Indians encamped about the spot, he remained undetected. Escaping them he had to track the wilderness some one hundred miles before he could hope for security or relief from the agonizing pain of his undressed wound. This he did, living on roots, and the body of a rattle-snake which he encountered and killed. Gen. Mercer's name is intimately connected with the early history of the Keystone State, for he it was who destroyed the Indian settlement at Kittanning, Pa., for which, the corporation of Philadelphia afterwards presented him an appropriate medal.

"But Linden saw another sight!"

And Fredericksburg has a more modern and sad memory as the scene of Burnsides famous crossing of the Rappahannock and disastrous retreat.

The shore on either side here, is precipitous, with this exception, that; while on the northern, or Falmouth side, the bluffs run along the edge of the river, on the southern, or Fredericksburg side, they hollow inward, forming a kind of amphitheatre about the town, of one hill rising above the other in tiers, like a naturally constructed fortress, as it is. The morning of the 10th of December was foggy, when our brave boys, who had crossed the rapidly running river some six days before, were preparing to burst out of the town of Fredericksburg, which they occupied, and storm the towering ranges of cannon, tier above tier, that frowned above them. As, at another, though long gone, unfortunate hour for our arms, (the battle of Germantown,) our troops moved in a veil of haze, and impenetrable mist, that at night was to settle down and become their winding sheets. It was difficult to distinguish friends from foes; and there was something weird in these long columns of troops appearing suddenly and silently, and then melting away as silently in the thick, hanging mist; while, with an awful silence, the rebel cannon lay beyond.

It was not a day to make the heart beat with enthusiasm; the gloom of death rested over the heart of man and the heart of nature. Yet, there was Valor there to dare all; and to the famed Irish division, under the gallant Meagher, was especially entrusted the duty of bursting out of the town, forming in the face of death, and storming the cannon bristling Heights towering immediately in their front. As they did so, the mist cleared away, leaving them exposed to the full gaze of the enemy. Then commenced that fearful game of setting men up, to be bowled down by iron balls, belched, as it were, from the thousand moths of hell. Again and again they charged up Marye's, Heights with each shot plowing through and through their ranks; to use the words of a Rebel Historian, "displaying a devotion that is remarkable in History!" But the sacrifice was useless; made so by the failure of troops to connect;—that ever hazardous strategy—and, the next morning, Burnside's whole army was again across the Rappahannock, and Fredericksburg once more under Confederate care.

Of the two attacks on this place, a few remembrances may be seen in shell riddled houses and solitary chimney stacks; though even these are to be found only in the outskirts of the town.

After leaving Fredericksburg, the rolls of the hills become longer, and the face of the country more level. The low grounds are especially fertile, and adapted to the culture of corn, wheat, and tobacco. The country too, is bountifully watered, and the famed Pamunkey and Chickahominy rivers are crossed successively. Inexhaustible beds of marl, most useful in agriculture, are found in this portion of the State, especially in Hanover county; and yet, owing to the false system of cultivation the country presents an appearance that would distress a Pennsylvania farmer.

If a Virginian has a farm of two thousand acres he cultivates the whole of it. Or rather he half or quarter cultivates the whole. He will not buy a pound of manure, nor will he save what he has. The result is, that a Northern farmer might come along; buy one sixth of his land; manure it; and with reduced labor, produce a crop that would far outstrip in value, the product of the whole 200 acres under the old system. And, if the farmers of Virgina do not become alive to this fact, they will find Northern energy and thrift taking their birth rights from them. Indeed, it has, in many instances, already come to pass, assisted as it is by the low price of land in this locality;—the very best selling at from ten to fifteen dollars per acre. The lower portion of the county of Hanover, through which the railroad passes, is, however, a poor, piney region, called "the Slashes." But even these bogs have contributed to the fame and greatness of the State, for it was in a miserable little cabin amid these so called "Slashes of Hanover" that the Immortal Clay was born, hence his title of the "Mill Boy of the Slashes." After leaving Ashland, a beautiful little village, or collection of gentlemens country-seats, with, also, a dancing pavilion, the resort of the people of Richmond during the summer, the country becomes less picturesque, though more fertile; and everywhere, especially at the stations, does the negro population seem to preponderate. In Washington the negro bears the same proportion to the white population, that raisins and currants do in a fruit cake;—but here they are as thick as flies around a molasses hogshead, most all of them too, I noticed, carried baskets on their arms, which made me wonder if, like on election day, they were going for some "ob dat suf'rage" to take home to their wives? But leaving all such idle speculations we now begin to look anxiously for a distant glimpse of the once famous capital of the Confederacy. And at length the somewhat flat table land over which we have been speeding, seems to roll back and a glimpse of a distant river is seen, lined with trees arrayed in the russet hues of Autumn. Then gradually the city comes in sight, seated like Ancient Rome, on seven hills, then the train makes a sudden dive through a tunnel, making you wonder whether they have invented some method of landing you in the cellar of your hotel, and behold, you are in Richmond! But of that I shall speak in my next.

SO-MET-I-MES.

AMERICAN NOTES by Charles Dickens. Published by Ticknor and Fields, Boston, Mass.

The following editorial in the "New York Tribune" of October 24th has led to the issue of this edition of American Notes:—

"We regret to observe that one or two journals are spiteful enough to print some very unkind remarks about Charles Dickens, in anticipation of his forthcoming visit to America. Mr. Dickens said some pretty hard things of us many years ago; but it is by no means certain that we did not deserve them; and even if we did not, any man of sense ought to know that whatever little injury he ever did us has been twenty times outweighed by the substantial good he has conferred upon the world. The fact is, we doubt whether those who are now rudest in their censure of the great novelist know how much truth and good sense are embodied in the writings with which they principally find fault, and how groundless is the assertion that he 'abused the hospitality, which we forced upon him. It would be a wise thing—good for Mr. Dickens and good for ourselves—if our publishers would take the present opportunity to put upon the market a new edition of the American Notes; that would help us to know how little we had to complain of from the hands of our guest, how much we have mended in our manners, and how much there is still to mend."

D. H. & W. R. R. The Sunbury Gazette of last week says:

We are told that Savidge & Brother, of this place, who have the contract for building the portion of the road between this place and Danville, this week commenced the work of grading, a short distance above Sunbury. We understand that Mr. James Malone, a well known and energetic contractor, will become interested with the Messrs. Savidge in completing this part of the work.

We understand that Messrs. Wiley and Criswell are the sub-contractors to lay the sills and rails on the whole of the Danville, Hazleton and Wilkesbarre Railroad.—Montour American.

WICKERSHAM on the Radicals. He said in Lancaster County a farmer would wait half a day for the master blacksmith to shoe his horses; but would send his children to school to a man who knew-nothing. That accounts for the Radical majority in that County.

He said also that Baltimore city had the finest schools and school houses in the country. That accounts for the magnificent Democratic victory achieved in the city this fall.

Talk about all the intelligence, and morality, and then refer to Lancaster County and Baltimore City.

FITZ GREENE HALLECK, the Poet, died at Guilford, Conn. on the 19th Nov. aged 80 years. Some years ago he enjoyed quite a reputation. He was the editor of a very good edition of Byron's Works.

THE river Neva, in Russia, was frozen over on the 20th November.

To Hotel and Saloon keepers of Bloomsburg and Columbia County.—I have appointed Mr. R. Stohner agent for the sale of my ale, porter brown stout, and lager beer, who will supply you at the same price (and with the same article), as I would furnish you from the brewery. Knowing that he will be punctual and attentive to all who may favor him with their trade, I solicit for him your support. Very respectfully, Farmer's Department.

Health of Cows.

Good health in domestic animals, is always a matter of primary importance.

As bad health in parents, transmits a tendency to disease in the offspring, it is important that every kind of animals we desire to continue on our farms should be kept vigorous and healthy.

As domestic animals are a source of human food, it is of great importance to preserve them in a healthy condition. Diseased meat carries its qualities into the stomach of its consumers. It is a serious objection which vegetarians urge against the use of animal food, that the artificial circumstances in which animals live, and the bad treatment they receive, render them unhealthy. As an unhealthy animal does not consume food to as good advantage as a well one, it is economical to avoid disease.

As comparative misery and discomfort accompany disease, it is humane as well as economical, to see that the animals under our care enjoy as far as possible their creature comforts.

Each of the circumstances is a sufficient reason for guarding with scrupulous care, the health of the animals we feed; but when we derive milk from animals, it is doubly important that they are kept free from every objectionable taint. A sickly cow not only yields a diminished profit, but she yields a sickly milk, and sickly in a higher degree than her flesh.

If a cow eats anything that has a strong or disagreeable odor, it appears in her milk.

If a cow eats anything medicinal it comes out in her milk.

If she is feverish her milk shows it.

If she has sores about her, pus may be found in her milk.

If she is fed upon decayed or diseased food, her milk since it is derived from her food, will be imperfect. It is as impossible to make good milk from bad food, as to make a good building from rotten timber.

Farmers' Sons.

It is not the custom now for a farmer's son to grow up on the farm, work as his father worked before him, and bring up his family at the old homestead, or, what is better yet, in a new one and a finer one. Young men seek the cities. They wish to dress in fine clothes all the time and stand behind counters. They get an education and consider it wasted unless they engage in commercial pursuits and, become "citizens," instead of "countrymen." We have great respect for the commercial interests of the nation, and do not wish to join the popular sneer at counter-jumpers and clerks. We have need for young men in every department of honest labor. But we do think that the hard out-door work of agriculture is better calculated to develope manliness of character than the confined labors of the counting-house or shop. Farming is not enough respected by the nation in comparison with the mercantile pursuits. Young men, too, in a majority of instances, desert the farm and seek the city because they wish to escape the harder labor which is supposed to be the lot of the farm. They wish to lead an easier life than their fathers led, and attain the same success. A few years of experience behind the counter or the desk dissipate the idea that the mercantile life is the easier one; but at first view it has fascintions to the young man's eye which agriculture has not. Is there not consiberable of laziness in this rush to the city of farmers' sons? We need a certain amount of fresh blood and fresh brain from the rural districts in every branch of metropolitan industry; but we do not need the rush of applicants for positions which lowers the salaries here, while the rural districts are suffering for work hands.—N. Y. Evening Gazette.

Boys on the Farm.

The time was, when boys were considered of but trifling account upon the farm. They answered to run errands and to do the light "chores" about the house and barn. To keep them out of mischief when not attending school they possibly did some service astride the horse to mark out corn ground, and cultivate the corn and potatoes. But if ambitious to join the men in the fields, or elsewhere, they were equipped with the most worthless cast aside tools, such as rusty hoes, worn out seythes, old-fashioned forks, used up shovels, dull axes, battered hammers; unfiled saws, and so on through the whole catalogue of farm implements. They grew weary using them, and so would men have done, accomplishing only the same amount of labor. It would not be strange if such treatment first planted dissatisfaction in the heart of many a farmer's boy, which finally ripened into utter disgust, the seeking of employment behind the counter of the village store, or, perhaps, in something less honorable, which in the end resulted in iniquity and ruin.

We have faith in the farm boys of this day and generation. The nation owes them its sincere gratitude. They are deserving of all the benefits that shall result to them from the new Industrial Schools that are about being established. Their early life is a preparatory school that will teach them to appreciate the benefits and blessings that the agricultural colleges are intended to dispense. Honor, encourage and care for the boys of farm agriculture.

How to Set Gate Posts.

Take equal quantities of water-lime and quick-lime, and mix with sand as usual: put two or three inches of mortar and coarse gravel in the bottom of the hole, so the end of the post will not come to the ground; then set your post in, top-end down; fill in several inches of coarse gravel; pound it down; then more mortar and more gravel, and so on, until the cement is raised above the ground several inches around the post. Slant it away from the post in every direction, so as to turn off the water; then take coal tar and a brush, point around the bottom of the post and cement with coal tar. [N. B.—only mix enough mortar for one hole at a time.] Your post will be as firm as if set in stone; it don't heave out with the frost and sag down and pull the boards off, as the water and air cannot get to it.—Ohio Farmer.

Buckwheat Griddle Cakes.—One quart buttermilk, one teaspoonful soda, one tablespoonful of salt; if wanted daily for breakfast, make a batter and put in half a cup of yeast; then add the flour and water to them each evening, and can be ready all winter.

For the Young Folks.

The Belly and the Members.

In former days, when all a man's limbs did not work together as amicably as they do now, but each had a will and way of its own, the Members generally began to find fault with the Belly for spending an idle, luxurious life, while they were wholly occupied in laboring for its support, and ministering to its wants and pleasures; so they entered into a conspiracy to cut off its supplies for the future. The hands were no longer to carry food to the mouth, nor the mouth to receive the food, nor the teeth to chew it. They had not long persisted in this course of starving the Belly into subjection, ere they all began, one by one, to fail and flag, and the whole body to pine away. Then the members were convinced that the Belly also, cumbersome and useless as it seemed, had an important function of its own; that they could no more do without it than it could do without them; and that if they would have the constitution of the body in a healthy state, they must work together, each in his proper sphere, for the common good of all.

The Wind and the Sun.

A Dispute once arose between the Wind and the Sun, which was the stronger of the two, and they agreed to put the point upon this issue, that whichever soonest made a traveller take off his cloak, should be accounted the more powerful. The Wind began, and blew with his might and main a blast, cold and fierce as a Thracian storm; but the stronger he blew the closer the traveller wrapped his cloak around him, and the tighter he grasped it with his hands. Then broke out the Sun: with his welcome beams he dispersed the vapor and the cold; the traveller felt the genial warmth, and as the Sun shone brighter and brighter, he sat down, overcome with the heat, and cast his cloak on the ground.

Thus the Sun was declared the conqueror; and it has ever been deemed that persuasion is better than force; and that the sunshine of a kind and gentle manner will sooner lay open a poor man's heart than all the threatenings and force of blustering authority.

The Bees, the Drones, and the wasp.

Some Bees had built their comb in the hollow trunk of an oak. The Drones asserted that it was their doing, and belonged to them. The cause was brought into court before Judge Wasp. Knowing something of the parties, he thus addressed then: "The plantiffs and defendants are so much alike in shape and colour as to render the ownership a doubtful matter, and the case has very properly been brought before me. The ends of justice, and the object of the court, will best be furthered by the plan which I propose. Let each party take a hive to itself, and build up a new comb, that from the shape of the cells and the taste of the honey, the lawful proprietors of the property in dispute may appear." The Bees readily assented to the Wasp's plan. The Drones declined it. Whereupon the Wasp gave judgment: "It is clear now who made the comb, and who cannot make it: the Court adjudges the honey to the Bees."

Jupiter and the Bee.

In days of yore, when the world was young, a Bee that had stored her combs with a bountiful harvest, flew up to heaven to present as a sacrifice an offering of honey. Jupiter was so delighted with the gift, that he promised to give her whatsoever she should ask for. She therefore besought him, saying, "O glorious Jove, maker and master of me, poor Bee, give thy servant a sting, that when any one approaches my hive to take the honey, I may kill him on the spot." Jupiter, out of love to man, was angry at her request, and thus answered her: "Your prayer shall not be granted in the way you wish, but the sting which you ask for you shall have; and when any one comes to take away your honey and you attack him, the wound shall be fatal not to him but to you, for your life shall go with your sting."

He that prays harm for his neighbor, begs a curse upon himself.

The Ant and the Dove.

An Ant went to a fountain to quench his thirst, and tumbling in, was almost drowned. But Dove that happend to be sitting on a neighboring tree saw the Ant's danger, and plucking off a leaf, let it drop into the water before him, and the Ant mounting upon it, was presently wafted safe ashore. Just at that time, a Fowler was spreading his net and was in the act of ensnaring the Dove, when the Ant perceiving his object, bit his heel. The start which the man made him drop his net, and the Dove aroused to a sense of her danger, flew safe away.

One good turn deserves another.

The Wolf and the Sheep.

A Wolf that had been bitten by a dog, and was in a very sad case, being unable to move called to a Sheep, that was passing by, and begged her to fetch him some water from the neighboring stream. "For if you," said he, "will bring me drink, I will find meat myself." "Yes," said the Sheep, "I make no doubt of it; for, if I come near enough to give you the drink, you will soon make mince-meat of me."

The Collier and the Fuller.

A Collier, who had more room in his house than he wanted for himself, proposed to a Fuller to come and take up his quarters with him. "Thank you," said the Fuller, "but I must decline your offer; for I fear that as fast as I whiten my goods you will blacken them again."

There can be little liking where there is no likeness.

The Dolphins and the Sprat.

The Dolphins and the Whales were at war with one another, and while the battle was at its height, the Sprat stepped in and endeavored to separate them, But one of the Dolphins cried out, "Let us alone, friend! We had rather perish in the contest, than be reconciled by you."

The Kid and the Wolf.

A Kid being mounted on the roof of a lofty house, and seeing a wolf pass below began to revile him. The wolf merely stopped to reply, "Coward! it is not you who revile me, but the place on which you are standing."

"M. T. Jugg" recently delivered a temperance lecture, in which he said that "there is no harm in a glass of good whiskey, provided it is allowed to remain in the glass."

THE GREAT

ZINGARI BITTERS

The component parts of this remarkable preparation were first discovered, compounded and distributed, some twenty years ago, by Dr. Cuneorsu, the celebrated Egyptian Physician. Thousands of his suffering countrymen were restored to health, as well as great numbers of the inhabitants of Nubia and Abyssinia, and of the countries bordering upon the Southern coast of the Mediterranean Sea.

Indeed, the fame of the ZINGARI BITTERS soon spread over Europe, and was adopted by the principal Physicians in charge of the hospitals of the old world, in which it is still used with preeminent success. The Viceroy of Egypt placed the name of Dr. Cuneorsu upon the "Roll of Nobles," and presented to him a Medal bearing the following inscription: "Dr. Cuneorsu, the Public Benefactor." This Bitters is now offered to the public of America with the full assurance that it will be found, upon a fair trial, to act as a specific for the cure of Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhœa, Cholera Morbus, Fever and Ague, Yellow Fever, Rheumatism, Typhoid Fever, Dyspepsia, Colic, Bronchitis, Consumption, Flatulency, Diseases of the Kidneys, Nervous Debility, and Female Complaints.

Remarkable cures of the above diseases have been effected by its use, as numerous certificates, many from regular physicians, fully attest; and it is destined to supersede any preparation extant. As an agreeable Tonic, and an

INVIGORATING BEVERAGE,
IT HAS NO EQUAL.

THUS THE ZINGARI BITTERS
HAS SOUL
AS WELL AS BODY,
AND AS A
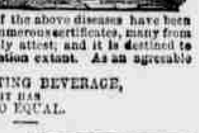
HAS NO SUPERIOR.



A FEW WORDS TO LADIES.—The use of the ZINGARI BITTERS will give to you that soft, semi-transparent complexion which the God of nature (designing woman to be the loveliest of his works) fully intended that you should have—for it is nature's own powder and paint combined. By purifying the blood, stimulating the pigmentary cells of the dermis, and imparting health and life throughout the entire system, it especially gives that smooth clearness and beauty to the complexion so much to be desired—removing all roughness, blotches, freckles, pimples, and that yellow, sickly look so common in our day; and what is even better than this, it cures every species of female irregularities and disease

THE KEYSTONE CLOVER SEED STRIPPER.

PATENTED OCTOBER 2, 1866.

This simple, though effective machine is admitted by all scientific observers to be the most direct device for gathering clover seed yet discovered.

A mere glance at it is sufficient to convince the most obtuse mind of its practical utility.

It strips the clover head from the stalk leaving the straw standing upon the ground. It is easily drawn by one horse, and requires but one man or boy to work it.

It is compact, simple in structure, and not liable to get out of order, and can be cheaply got up.

The great advantage in this machine is, we have the seed gathered in the chaff, ready for the clover mill or huller, besides saving the great length of time and labor of mowing, handling and threshing it from the straw. It will also pay every farmer to gather his seed with this machine, on account of the saving of the seed which is lost in the old way of gathering it.
